Attorney General Bruning Comments on Nebraska Supreme Court Decision

(Lincoln, Neb) Attorney General Jon Bruning issued the following comment about the Nebraska Supreme Court's decision to not reconsider its ruling that electrocution is cruel and unusual punishment.

"We're not surprised by today's decision, but obviously we're disappointed. My office will appeal this ruling to the U.S. Supreme Court. Nebraskans overwhelmingly support the death penalty. We'll do everything possible to ensure the sentences of the state's worst murderers are carried out."
